FUTURE FOOL

Recently an odd looking fellow in his thirty-somethings ambled up to the door of the King's house and announced that he was from the latter part of the twenty-first century and a member of The Fools Guild. Before you could say chrono-synclastic-infidibulum we at The Jester conducted the following interview.

Jester: Our readers would really like to know what The Fools Guild is like in 2091. There are so many questions. Well, for one, what is your name?

Future Fool: Call me Future Fool. That's my name. You got a beer?

J: Sure, is a Bud OK?

FF: Oh that's right, I almost forgot. Your beer still has alcohol in it. That's OK. Ooohhh do you have any Pepsi. I've always wondered what that tasted like. You see Coca Cola nuked Pepsi into submission in the great soda war in 2029.

J: Sure we can get you a Pepsi, but what is the Fools Guild like where you're from?

FF: We're going through kind of a crisis right now because we have to find a new place to have our parties. The guy who owns the crater where we've been having our big parties, you know Halloween, New Years, Feast of Fools and Saint Mackey's Day, well he sold the crater to some developer to build a new lunar landing mini-mart so we're temporarily up the river without a slapstick.

J: You have the parties on the moon?

FF: Golly you're a swift one. Yeah on the moon, of course we still have some events on earth up at the Boy's Camp in Griffith Park. There's a pool there, haven't used it yet but we'll get around to it one of these days.

J: Out of curiosity, how much does it cost to get in to a guild party in 2091?

FF: $1600.00 and a six-pack. Or if you pie the King before 6 AM on her birthday you get in to all the parties free that year.

J: I noticed you said "her". Do you mean to tell me that where you're from the King of Fools is a woman?

FF: Of course! The King of Fools is always a woman. Each year we have our big parade and crown the new King of Fools out at the faire and it's always a woman.

J: Wow! So you still have the Fools Parades out at The Renaissance Faire.

As Douglas Adams said, "There are of course many problems connected with life, of which some of the most popular are why are people born? Why do they die? Why do they want to spend so much of the intervening time wearing digital watches?" We also have the problem of not knowing how to reach all the Fools out there to inform them of upcoming events, happenings, family outings, fool attacks and excuses to get together. Do send in your address and phone number so we can call you up in the middle of the night and try out our Jerry Lewis impressions on you. But furiously soaks, lots of events are being planned by the King's Privie Council. We want your input. Use the supplied form and let us know what you would attend. Submit additional ideas as well. And be sure to include your contact info, including phone because a lot of phoning will be done to get these events populated. Introduce a friend to the Guild...they'll never stop thanking you, or it that spanking you? Ouch!

CAPTION FOR CARTOON ON 'PAGE TOO':

The Sextology of the Jolly Cockroach

Written by Jeffrey (Gluckson) Briar
(alias Kensington Farnsworth Hemingsbury Keatsborough Waddlesworth)

WHY?

When aught is not,
And thoughts are thought
of thoughts of what ought not to be thought,
then chirps the willow o'er the moor
And doth the raven, "wanna score?"

And as the pines dash through the trees,
and Mister Green Jeans wears dungarees,
then aught is not,
and thoughts are thought
of thought that ought not to be thought.

HOW?

As shines the sun o'er Cockney Dell,
the bats swim low, cast out of hell,
And bash their bodies 'pon my door,
as my true love's soup spills to the floor.

What ho! dear Santa, please weep ye not,
for I have done you not but aught,
and I have seen that thoughts are thought
of thoughts that ought not to be thought.

WHO?

As soft the tawny pippit brays,
amidst the rooster's eyes and naves,
so thus the cockatoo does smile
and ask me for the time, of night.

But when the frost winds of the west
do waltz upon the pippit's breast,
Then, I state, God's anger is wrought,
And thoughts of what ought not to be thought.

WHAT, 3?!

My heart should smart from cupid's dart
Forsooth; that archer knows his art!
But to me, love is just a jest,
for I do wear a bullet-proof vest.

But this sure steel protected me not any,
when cupid smote me in the fanny.
And now my boxer shorts are shot,
With thought of what ought not to be thought.

we understand that congratulations are in order to EMILY SPRINGHORN for buying a brand new brother or sister. delivery is pending.

WHEN?

Upon the dank and dusty sledge,
the haughty hedgehog hogs his hedge.
And uses his lawnmowers as his shovels,
While sunk into the gunk he grovels.

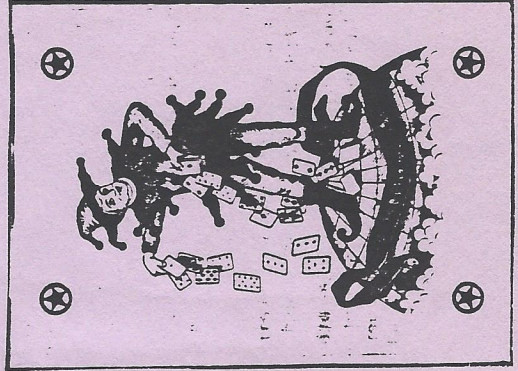

Forsooth, Rapunzel, where's my hat?
"In the foul lair of some repulsive gnat
Whose fetid lawnmower was bought
With thoughts of what ought not to be thought."

WHERE? (conclusion)

"Twixt Mistletoe and Bobbin-wind,
The jolly cockroach lost his mind!
He found it 'neath a tumble stone,
and locked it in a box at home.

But one blistery day the box did burst,
The mind hopped out, and, doing his worst,
He wrote some poems, and then was shot
for thinking what ought not to be thought.

Written in 1970, at Hamilton High School, to pass the time on the first days of school.

What's in this column? Strange tales told by an idiot full of sound and fury signifying nothing. Noteworthy anecdotes garnered from gigs or other first hand foolish endeavors. This one happened to me, Billy Q. Barrett. It sounds glamorous enough, a three hour gig in a mammoth RV campsite in Acton as a mime, juggler, unicyclist. Most of my audience were genteel gentiles well into their sunset years but I also attracted the attention of three Tom Sawyer types still in their first decade of life. These three boys were supportive, enthusiastic and really into my juggling. They seemed to enjoy the challenge of communicating with me even though, like a dummy

I wasn't talking. At one point I attempted to mount my unicycle. An attempt that wasn't too successful. I pretended to have hurt my crotch area. Without being overly vulgar I winced and "comically" gyrate as though I had busted my balls while trying to get on the unicycle. One of the young lads laughed and said: "Ha, he hurt himself there."

At this one of the other boys who fancied himself the trio's leader gently but firmly corrected his pal.

"No, he didn't hurt himself there. He's a clown. He doesn't have anything there."

Please send your tales of the cute, the bizarre, or the miraculous to this column.

FF: Oh no, not The Renaissance Faire, The Sixties Faire. It's really cool. Everyone gets dressed up like Hippies and we all hang around at the Mallseum. Anyway according to the Eternal One there was only one male King of Fools and that was he.

J: He?

FF: He, The Eternal One, Jack Albee. At the very end of your century he discovered that one could arrest the aging process by performing street theatre and painting pictures of old guys and keeping them in your attic.

J: Very interesting I guess we've been living in a fool's paradise, so to speak. Anyway, Future Fool, how did you get back here to 1991, in a time machine?

FF: Right as rubber, budgie! We have our own time machine now so we don't have to rent one from Marvel Enterprises.

J: So why exactly did you choose to come back to this point in time.

FF: I fucked up. I meant to go to 1999 for the Milenium Crusher but I must have entered the wrong digit. So if you foolys don't mind I'll be spinning off now. Someone's probably waiting to use this machine and I still want to catch the Crusher, what a party that was, uh or uh will be.

J: You mean that's the time machine? But it looks like one of those stupid letter openers Toby used to make out of butter knives.

FF: Yeah, well they work a lot better as time machines than they do as letter openers. Anyway when the price of a postage stamp broke the hundred dollar mark people stopped sending letters and just used their faxes until we found out that it was the use of fax machines that was causing AIDS. Then after that we went back to drumming to send messages. No kidding kids I gotta burst. Take care and have a nice day!
